Trends and changes in the world of work

We recognize what employers are facing today...

Businesses of all sizes are grappling with

SKILLED WORKER SHORTAGES, as well as RECRUITMENT, RETENTION, and TRAINING CHALLENGES, hindering their ability to GROW AND THRIVE

TRENDS AND CHANGES IN THE WORLD OF WORK

Changes in how work is conducted are impacting your workforce needs

WORK AND TECHNOLOGY ARE CHANGING

Technological innovation, including AI, are transforming how work is done - driving you to consider how they upskill or re-skill their workforce.

The change is global

Business leaders are bracing for change

And workers are feeling the pressure as well

14%

of the global workforce is expected to have to change occupations or acquire new skills by 2030 because of automation and Al

87%

of executives are expecting skills gaps in the workforce within the next few years

2/3
of workers willing to re-skill or up skill to remain competitive and changes in where the work is conducted is also impacting your workforce needs

THE WORKPLACE IS CHANGING

The workplace is increasingly not bound to a specific environment – driving workers and employers to reconsider the employee experience and what impactful teams look like.

THE OFFICE CONTINUES TO CHANGE...

75% of people never worked from home prior to the pandemic

18% of Northern Virginia's working population works remotely – among the highest of any region in the country.

...AND SO DOES THE FACTORY FLOOR

92% of manufacturers implementing or experimenting with "industrial metaverse" capabilities to enhance collaboration, accelerate new product design, gain access to difficult-to-find talent at remote locations

Employers across industries are navigating shifts in worker preferences and the configuration of the workplace itself.

Together, these changes are transforming the workforce itself...

THE WORKFORCE IS CHANGING

The workforce is undergoing both a generational and structural transformation as work is increasingly organized around skills, rather than specific jobs

6 of the 10

most in-demand skills that employers are looking for today are "uniquely human" capabilities

65%

of children entering primary school today will end up working in completely new job types that don't yet exist

generations are part of today's workforce—more than ever before in human history

12 job changes

On average, are expected for most people over the course of their careers

50%

of tasks across all occupations are uniquely human, up from 30% in 2010...and projected to grow to 80% by 2030

TRENDS AND CHANGES IN THE WORLD OF WORK

And changing the way we all have to do business

These changes mean it's NO LONGER BUSINESS AS USUAL when it comes to

RECRUITMENT, RETENTION,

AND TRAINING
